

WHAT'S IN THE FY 2015 BUDGET FOR AFFORDABLE HOUSING?

Summary of the FY 2015 Budget for Affordable Housing

The fiscal year (FY) 2015 general fund budget for affordable housing is $151 million from a variety of sources. This represents a $21 million, or 16 percent increase from the approved FY 2014 budget, after adjusting for inflation. (Unless otherwise noted, all figures are adjusted for inflation to equal FY 2015 dollars.)

The budget also adds $40 million in one-time funds for this year, FY 2014, for the Housing Production Trust Fund. When adjusting for those funds, the FY 2015 budget represents an $18 million, or 10 percent, decrease from the fiscal year 2014 revised budget.

Notable increases include $7 million to the Local Rent Supplement program (LRSP) that will help create approximately 500 affordable homes for residents, including 60 that will be set aside for seniors who are moving from nursing homes back into the community and 75 that will be set aside for homeless families referred from the Department of Human Services. In addition, the budget includes $7 million in local funds to end chronic homelessness among veterans and provide assistance to chronically homeless families through the Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH) program. Yet, at the same time, funding for PSH for other chronically homeless individuals will fall in FY 2015. It is not clear at this point what the impact of those reductions will be.

In addition, the FY 2015 budget raises the maximum amount of down-payment and closing cost assistance available through the Home

FY 2015 BUDGET FOR AFFORDABLE HOUSING

- Includes $151 million for affordable housing, an increase of 16 percent, or $21 million over the approved FY 2014 budget, after adjusting for inflation.
- Includes $40 million in one-time funds for DC's Housing Production Trust Fund in the FY 2014 supplemental budget. The HPTF builds and preserves affordable housing in DC. When those funds are considered, the FY 2015 budget represents a drop in funding from FY 2014.
- Includes $7 million increase to the Local Rent Supplement program (LRSP) which would help create about 500 affordable housing units for very low-income families and individuals.
- Includes $7 million in local funds to help end chronic homelessness for veterans by 2015 and assist chronically homeless families through the Permanent Supportive Housing Program. PSH provides housing and supportive services to chronically homeless residents. Unfortunately, PSH funding for other individuals would fall in FY 2015.
- Includes language in the Budget Support Act that would direct 75 tenant based LRSP rental subsidies to go to homeless families that are referred from the Department of Human Services.
- Raises the maximum down-payment assistance offered through the Home Purchase Assistance Program from $40,000 to $50,000.
- Includes $1 million to establish a locally funded low-income housing tax credit (LIHTC) to support the production of affordable housing.

Purchase Assistance Program (HPAP) from $40,000 (with up to $4,000 for closing cost assistance) to $50,000 (with up to $5,000 for closing cost assistance). HPAP helps low-income first-time homebuyers purchase homes. Lastly, the FY 2015 budget also adds $1 million to establish a locally funded low-income housing tax credit to support the production of affordable housing in DC.

Analysis of the FY 2015 Housing Budget

The District has created a variety of affordable housing tools, each serving a specific purpose and each critical to making housing available along the entire continuum of needs — from homelessness to homeownership — for DC’s low- and moderate-income residents. These tools include:

- The Housing Production Trust Fund which finances affordable housing construction and renovation, and also provides financial support to tenants who want to purchase their building when it goes up for sale.
- The Local Rent Supplement Program which provides rental assistance to help very low-income residents — those making less than $30,000 a year — live in affordable homes.
- The Permanent Supportive Housing Program which provides supportive housing for chronically homeless individuals and families.

As a result of the Great Recession, funding for affordable housing fell from FY 2009 through FY 2012, when total funds for affordable housing hit a seven-year low. The nearly 40 percent drop in funding during this period left the city’s affordable housing tools largely stagnant, with funding used to maintain most programs at their prior-year levels. The exception is the Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF), where resources fell significantly when the recession hit and remained low for some time. HPTF is supported by 15 percent of DC’s deed recordation and transfer taxes, which dropped sharply in the downturn. Moreover, in FY 2012 and FY 2013, the HPTF was significantly cut through the budget process.

Funding for affordable housing hit a peak in FY 2013 when the mayor allocated nearly $67 million in one-time funds for the Housing Production Trust Fund. The FY 2015 budget is well below the FY 2013 peak, but it will be far higher than funding in the recessionary years of FY 2011 and FY 2012.

This analysis highlights the following major sources for affordable housing from local District funds: the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), DC

Housing Authority Subsidy (DCHA), the Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF), the Permanent Supportive Housing Program administered by the Department of Human Services, and a housing program administered by the Department of Mental Health (DMH).

Figure 1 (see previous page) shows the change in total local funding for affordable housing from FY 2011 to FY 2015. Total funding for FY 2015 is $151 million, which is a $18 million decrease, or 10 percent, from the FY 2014 revised budget, after adjusting for inflation. However, as mentioned previously, the FY 2014 revised budget includes $40 million in one-time funds for the Housing Production Trust Fund that are not available in FY 2015. When those funds are not considered, the FY 2015 budget for affordable housing is $21 million, or 16 percent, higher than the FY 2014 budget.

Approximately $14 million of the increase comes from two major programs; the Local Rent Supplement Program and Permanent Supportive Housing Program. LRSP will increase by $7 million to create approximately 500 affordable homes for very low-income families. Permanent Supportive Housing will see a $7 million increase to end chronic homelessness among veterans and help chronically homeless families. In addition, the Department of Behavioral Health’s Home First program adds $5 million in FY 2015, yet those funds reflect a transfer of funding from the capital budget to the operating budget and will not result in additional affordable housing units. Lastly, $1 million was added to create a locally funded low-income housing tax credit to support the production of affordable housing.

In prior years, the total funds securitized from the Housing Production Trust Fund for New Communities projects had been included in the total funds for affordable housing. This analysis removes the funding used to securitize bonds for New Communities projects in FY 2012 and prior years. Therefore, total figures in this analysis may not match totals reported in prior years' analyses.

The Department of Housing and Community Development

The Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) manages a variety of programs — both local and federal — to finance, develop, and preserve affordable housing and homeownership for low-income DC residents. The major programs DHCD operates with local dollars are: the Home Purchase Assistance Program (HPAP) which provides low-interest loans to low-income, first-time homebuyers; the Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF) which is DC's main source for affordable housing construction and renovation; the First Right Purchase Program which helps low-income tenants purchase their buildings when they go up for sale; the Single Family Rehab Program and the Lead Abatement Program which help homeowners make repairs and remove lead hazards from their home and the Inclusionary Zoning (IZ) program which requires developers to set aside 8 to 10 percent of their units as affordable in return for density bonuses. DHCD also spends local dollars to revitalize DC neighborhoods through the economic development of disadvantaged neighborhoods.

Total local funding for DHCD is $22 million in FY 2015, not including the Housing Production Trust Fund, which is described separately in this analysis. The DHCD budget is an increase of 3 percent from $21 million in FY 2014. The increase is partially attributed to an additional $2 million in funds for the Home Purchase Assistance Program (this is described in greater detail below), $500,000 for business façade improvements in Ward 8, and $300,000 for an East End homeownership campaign that will be focused on increasing homeownership in Wards 7 and 8. The increase also includes a transfer of $2.4 million in costs associated with projects that were previously funded with capital dollars.

The increases will be somewhat offset by a reduction of $1.6 million and nearly 17 full-time equivalent positions across the agency and $2.3 million in reductions in contracts as a result of lower projected revenues in the property acquisition and disposition division. Lastly, $1.5 million was taken out of DHCD’s budget and transferred over to the Department of Human Services for a rapid re-housing program for singles.

The Council also designated $4.3 million from within DHCD’s budget for two initiatives for seniors. Just over $4 million will be designated for the production of affordable housing for seniors and $200,000 will be used to study how to provide housing and wrap-around services to LGBT seniors.

DHCD’s Residential and Community Services Division

The Residential and Community Services Division focuses on providing funding assistance for individual households and community revitalization through commercial revitalization programs. Major programs operated in this division are the Home Purchase Assistance Program (HPAP) and the Single Family Rehab and Lead Safe Washington programs.

Home Purchase Assistance Program

The Home Purchase Assistance Program (HPAP). HPAP provides down-payment and closing cost assistance to help low-income first-time homebuyers.<sup>1</sup> Gross funding for

<sup>1</sup> The home purchase assistance programs also contain smaller pots of funding for the Employer Assisted Housing Program (EAHP), which provides home purchase assistance to DC government employees and home buying assistance for DC Police Officers. In addition, a new program is available in FY 2011 to help DC government employees whose HPAP in FY 2015 — federal and local funds combined — will fall from $13 million to $12 million. (See Figure 3.) For FY 2015, the HPAP program faces a $3 million reduction in federal funds. An additional $2 million in local funds in FY 2015 leaves the program with the net cut of $1 million.

In FY 2015, the maximum amount of down-payment and closing cost assistance available to first-time homebuyers will increase from $40,000 (with up to $4,000 in closing cost assistance) to $50,000 (with up to $5,000 in closing cost assistance). This marks the first increase in the maximum level of HPAP assistance since the onset of the recession. In FY 2009, the District chose to reduce the loan amounts from $70,000 to $40,000, following a significant drop in funding for the program, to try to maintain the number of households served despite reduced funding.

Yet the total number of first-time homebuyers receiving HPAP loans also has fallen with the reductions in funding. In FY 2008, 508 first-time home-buyers were served. By FY 2013, that number had fallen to 240. In FY 2014 and FY 2015, DHCD projects to serve 260 first-time homebuyers in each year, yet without an increase in funding, and an increase in the actual loan amount available per person, it is not clear how this will occur.

Single-Family Rehabilitation and Lead Safe Washington programs

Gross funding for the single family rehabilitation program — which helps low-income homeowners finance repairs that address health, safety concerns, building code violations, roofs repairs, and improve accessibility — will decrease from $10 million in FY 2014 to $8 million in FY 2015. Funding for the lead-safe program will decrease from $9.6 million in FY 2014 to $1.7 million in FY 2015. The lead-safe program provides funds to low-income households (or owners of buildings that have low-income tenants) to help identify and mitigate lead paint hazards.

It should be noted that in FY 2014 funds were significantly increased for the single-family rehabilitation program and lead-safe Washington program, using resources shifted from the Housing Production Trust funds. Funding for the single family rehab program increased from $1 million to $9.6 million in FY 2014 and funds for the lead-safe program increased from $3 million to $10 million. This means that the FY 2015 funding for both programs, despite being a decline from FY 2014, still is higher than in FY 2013 and prior years. Given that at the DHCD performance oversight hearing for FY 2014, the agency noted that the majority of the funds had not been expended, it will be important to monitor if DHCD is able to spend that level of funds.

Affordable Housing Project Financing Within DHCD

Another major function of DHCD is the financing of rental and homeownership opportunities for low-income District residents. This is largely done through the Affordable Housing Project Financing (AHPF) division. The major local programs that support affordable housing financing are the Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF), and the Tenant Opportunity to Purchase (TOPA) programs.

positions are covered by collective bargaining agreements to purchase homes. This program is called the Negotiated Employee Affordable Home Purchase Assistance program (NEAHP).

Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF)

The Housing Production Trust Fund (HPTF) supports the construction and renovation of affordable housing. Under legislation enacted in 2002, some 15 percent of deed recordation and transfer taxes are dedicated to the fund each fiscal year. This funding rose substantially after FY 2002, during the District's real estate market boom. In addition, deed tax rates were raised in FY 2007 to expand funding for HPTF and other housing programs. However, DC's real estate market cooled substantially starting in 2008 and this resulted in a sharp decline in support for HPTF. DC's real estate market began to heat up again in FY 2011 and resources for the HPTF began to rise. However, in both FY 2012 and FY 2013, the mayor's budget cut approximately $20 million in funding for HPTF.

The FY 2015 budget for the HPTF is $40 million from dedicated tax revenues. Total resources in FY 2013 and FY 2014 are significantly higher as a result of one-time funds of $69 million and $40 million, respectively, which were added to the dedicated tax revenues. (See Figure 4.) The one-time funds will help make progress on the mayor's stated goal of 10,000 new affordable housing units and 8,000 preserved affordable housing units by 2020. But the reliance on one-time funds also highlights the limited capacity of the Housing Production Trust Fund under its current funding formula. In order to maintain a significant and predictable investment into the HPTF, DC should look to appropriate additional funds into the HPTF each year to achieve a goal of $100 million annually for housing production and preservation.

First Right Purchase Program

The First Right Purchase program helps tenant organizations exercise their first-right of purchase when a landlord wants to sell their building, by providing counseling, earnest money deposits, and loans. The program is one of DC's key anti-displacement tools and helped preserve nearly 1,400 units of affordable housing over the last decade.

During the recession, with limited funding for the Housing Production Trust Fund and federal reductions to the federal Community Development Block Grant funds — two of the major sources for First Right purchase funding — funding was not available to support tenant purchase efforts at a meaningful level. In fact, while DHCD has a stated goal of funding 100 units through First Right Purchase, just 36 units were funded in FY 2012 and 50 units in FY 2013. Now that significant resources have been added into the HPTF in FY 2013 and FY 2014, it is likely that the District can support additional tenant purchase projects.

With over 5,000 units of rental housing put up for sale in FY 2012 and at least 45 tenant groups registering as a result, a goal of 100 units supported through First Right Purchase per year is too low. DHCD should increase its goal – starting with a goal of 300 units in FY 2015.

Locally Funded Low-Income Housing Tax Credit

The FY 2015 budget establishes a new locally funded low-income housing tax credit (LIHTC) with a $1 million pilot investment. The DC LIHTC will be managed by DHCD, which also manages the federal LIHTC program. The local tax credits will be granted to affordable housing projects that already have federal LIHTC's allocated to them. LIHTC's allow developers to raise needed capital to develop affordable housing by selling the tax credits to investors. The local program will closely match the federal LIHTC rules.

The DC Housing Authority Local Subsidy

The DC Housing Authority (DCHA) operates the federal public housing and Housing Choice Voucher programs. Since FY 2006, the District has provided local funds to DCHA to help cover a shortfall in federal funding for the voucher program, to fund security forces at DCHA managed buildings, and to support the Local Rent Supplement Program (LRSP) that was created in 2007 following a recommendation of the city's 2006 housing task force.

Funding for the DC Housing Authority subsidy for FY 2015 is $46 million, a $6 million increase from FY 2014. Yet the budget includes $7 million in new appropriations, or allowable expenditures, for the Local Rent Supplement Program. With no proposed savings elsewhere in the subsidy program, it is not clear how all of the new expenditures will be possible.

The $7 million increase for LRSP will be allocated as follows:

- Project/sponsor based LRSP. $3 million will go toward expanding rental assistance tied to specific projects or non-profit organizations to provide housing to very low-income DC residents. The $3 million in funding for this program should support about 270 additional LRSP rental subsidies.
- Tenant-based LRSP. The other $4 million will go toward expanding the tenant-based side of LRSP, which provides rental assistance directly to families or individuals, allowing them to make a home on the private market affordable. In FY 2015, about 60 of the subsidies will be allocated to seniors who are exiting nursing homes to live back in the community. Another 75 rental subsidies will be reserved for homeless families referred to DCHA by the Department of Human Services. The remaining 100 rental subsidies will go to families on the DCHA waitlist who have a preference because they are considered homeless.

This will be the third year in a row that LRSP has been expanded. The Comprehensive Housing Strategy Task Force set a goal in 2006 for the District to create roughly 14,600 subsidies in 15 years, or about 1,000 subsidies a year. Including the FY 2015 additions, the District will have funded about 3,240 households after nine years. Even with the recent additions however, the District still will be approximately 5,660 units behind its goal of 8,900 units in FY 2015, nine years after the Task Force report was released.

Other Affordable Housing Funding in the FY 2013 Budget

Affordable housing programs are also carried out in two other agencies, through the Home First Program at the Department of Mental Health and the Permanent Supportive Housing program within the Department of Human Services.

Home First Program

The Home First program at the Department of Behavioral Health is designed to help individuals to bridge from temporary housing into long-term stable housing by providing transitional housing and services. The FY 2015 budget for the Home First program is $13 million. This appears to be an increase, but it entirely reflects a transfer of $5 million in funding for this program from the city's capital budget to the operating budget. The funding is now reflected in the operating budget because of services tied with the affordable housing units. When this shift is taken into account, the FY 2015 budget is essentially the same as the FY 2014 budget.

Permanent Supportive Housing

The Permanent Supportive Housing Program, known as Housing First, was created in FY 2009 with $19 million to place chronically homeless individuals and families into permanent supportive housing with case management services. The program contained a capital component for site acquisition and renovation needs and an operating component for case management services and ongoing operating costs such as rental subsidies.

In FY 2015, the local budget for Permanent Supportive Housing is $29 million, a 31 percent increase from the FY 2014 budget. The additional funding includes $5 million to help end chronic homelessness among veterans by 2015 and $2 million to help provide PSH to approximately 77 chronically homeless families. The gross funding level — both federal and local — will increase from $29 million in FY 2014 to $35 million in FY 2015. However, funding to assist chronically homeless individuals who are not veterans will fall. At this point, it is not clear how this would impact existing individuals in the program. The reductions do mean that DC will not be able serve additional residents in FY 2015 who are not chronically homeless veterans.

For a more detailed analysis of the Permanent Supportive Housing Program, see DCFPI's toolkit piece on the FY 2015 budget for homeless services at: <http://www.dcfpi.org/fy15-budget-toolkit>.
