

The District's Dime

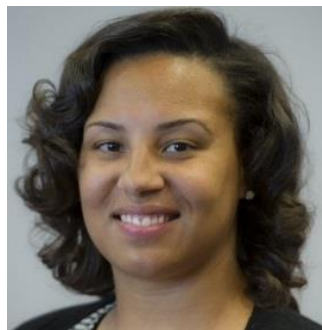

Going Beyond the Budget Book

The DC Fiscal Policy Institute blog
www.dcfpi.org

March 31, 2014

DCFPI Welcomes Candice Duggan to Our Team!

By Ed Lazere

The DC Fiscal Policy Institute family has grown! Candice Duggan joined us this month as DCFPI's first-ever Development Director. We are really excited to have her on board, and we hope you get to meet her soon. Candice will be joining DCFPI staff at meetings and events, to get up to speed on our work and to meet the many people with whom we interact on a regular basis. We will make sure to introduce her to you.

Candice has worked in development for five years, most recently for the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. In addition to working there, she is pursuing a master's degree in Public Management, building on her undergraduate degree in Public Policy. Prior to Johns Hopkins, Candice worked in Atlanta (her hometown) for Zoo Atlanta and Atlanta Habitat for Humanity. In her personal life, Candice enjoys traveling, reading and culinary arts, and she continues to nurture these passions while maintaining her professional career.

An organization cannot thrive on high-quality research and analysis alone – unless of course someone is there to connect with the people and institutions who understand the benefits and want to support it. Through a variety of activities, Candice will be reaching out to supporters to ensure that the DC Fiscal Policy Institute can continue its work to build thriving communities across the city.

Welcome Candice!