Why: Unlocking Opportunities for All of DC
15 years of Independent Research, Poverty Solutions and Better DC Government.

The DC Fiscal Policy Institute works every day to bring the District closer to being the city we all know it can be - a place that provides opportunity for all residents to flourish.

We have a 15-year track record of successfully advocating for the fundamentals that everyone in our city deserves. Whether it's testifying before the DC government, bringing diverse advocacy groups together, or conducting thorough, independent research, we work to tell the story of what's really happening in DC's economy. We pinpoint how the lives of real DC residents are affected. And we hold DC's government accountable for its decisions and actions.

Our research doesn't just report on the data — it shapes what happens. We're a vital resource for other nonprofits, who use our work to further their increasingly important missions. We're frequently cited in the media — helping to make sure that concerned DC citizens know what's happening, and have the knowledge they need to make a difference of their own. And we're trusted and respected by DC policymakers, so that our proposals become reality to make a real difference in the lives of DC residents across the city.

Looking forward, DCFPI will continue to help build a DC where all residents have the tools they need to build a secure future for themselves and their families, and where government promotes widespread opportunity. We want to build on our successes, tackle new challenges, and ensure our city's decision makers understand the needs, strengths, and resilience of our residents.
